

In this exercise you will meet Lisa Talbot, Chief Operations Officer at Inukshuk Books. Through your conversation with Lisa, you will learn more about the company, the project, and the project requirements.

During the exercise you will be able to ask questions and receive feedback about the product. This is an iterative tool that works as a “choose-your-own-adventure”. For every video that you watch, you will have 2 to 4 options of responses. Each response will take you to a different video based on your response.

Be careful! Not all options are good ones, and some options are better than others. Bad responses will result in you missing essential requirements. Great responses will offer you bonus information.

You will need to use these requirements to create a requirements document that will be peer reviewed. So take notes as you progress through the videos. You are able to restart the conversation as many times as you want. You may want to work your way through the conversation more than once to make sure that you have gotten all of the requirements.

To progress through the conversation, watch the video. At the end of the video you will see a list of response choices. Choose the answer that you think is the best response to the video you just watched.
